Property Description

It is no coincidence that you are taking a look at this property. Find out the real reason. Nowadays there are certain features that are not negotiable when buying a home. Behavioral psychologists have conducted short studies to reveal how people's needs have changed today (during the pandemic) when buying property. Here we share some of the most relevant.

- 1-Large kitchen: Considered one of the most important spaces in any house. This space must look sharp at all times so you can encourage children (and family in general) to eat the exquisite dishes that you can prepare.
- 2-Resting areas: With family members spending more time at home, either studying or working, it is practically mandatory to have one or more spaces where they can get out of the routine. For example: backyard, jacuzzi, multimedia room, among others.
- 3-Office: Besides the resting areas, an office is mandatory. A condition that the new reality has imposed.
